Two handkerchiefs tied together held the prisoner to the bars and cut deep into his neck. Strangulation was the cause of his death, produced by raising his feet from the floor.

A GOOD BARN.

Lake County, O., Man Has Them All Beaten for Fine Barn—How It Is Built.

I have noticed several photographs and descriptions of barns in the Ohio Farmer, but none of them are like the barn of Joel Reeves, of Lake County, O. says an Ohio correspondent. Mr. Reeves is over 80 years old. The illustration shows one bent of the barn and the EXCELLENT HAY BARN. location of the barn floor above the "big beams" and running lengthwise under the gable of the roof.

This barn was planned and built by Mr. Reeves about 20 or 25 years ago. It is situated on a side hill facing the south. It has 24-foot posts and 9-foot basement, making about 35 feet from the eaves to the ground. It is 60 feet long by 40 feet wide and is divided into six bays 20 feet square.

A bridge is built from the top of the hill to the gable end of the barn. A barn floor extends through the barn from this bridge. One man alone can easily and quickly unload hay into the bays beneath as it is all down-pitching. On the three sides opposite the hill are doors extending from the eaves to the ground, one for each bay. The hay is pitched out of these doors onto a wagon.

This barn is used entirely for hay which is marketed in Cleveland. The barn is built entirely on the principle of utilizing gravitation to the utmost. Scarcely any pitching up above the level of the hay rack has to be done from the time the load enters it until it is hauled away. This may afford some suggestions for those who are thinking of building hay barns for selling hay in the city, or for baling and shipping.

FAMOUS FOR HORSE RADISH.
Bavarian Village Has Reputation for Finest Farms in Europe—Its Yearly Yield.

The little village of Baiersdorf, in Bavaria, has the reputation of raising the finest horse radish in Europe. Over two square miles of land are devoted to this crop alone, and the annual receipts for the roots total over $120,000. The average yearly yield is in excess of 5,000,000 pounds.

The land is annually plowed and made into ridges about 30 inches wide. The roots for planting are dug in March and are sown in moist sand. When the season is well advanced these sprouts are set in the soil, the planter using a sharp stick to assist in the setting. Two rows, 16 to 20 inches apart, are set on each ridge, the plants being placed eight to ten inches apart in the rows. Before planting, the little fibers attached to each root are rubbed off by the hand or with a cloth. After the opening is made in the soil the plants are set in obliquely and the dirt well pressed down.

Soon the shoots form and all of these except the strongest are taken off. The ground is loosened by hoeing and the weeds destroyed. From the middle of June till the middle of July on cloudy days the soil is uncovered from the stem and the side roots rubbed off with soft rags. Care is taken that the lower roots that nourish the main roots are not disturbed. In heavy soils this uncovering is necessary but once, while in light soils it has to be repeated once. After the little fibers have been removed the soil is again pressed on the roots and the beds are well watered, sometimes with liquid manure.

Between the end of August and the middle of September the stalks are cut off by means of a sickle-like knife, and the end roots are left in the ground for the beginning of the new crop next year.

It is not an easy matter to change a horse-radish field to anything else as the smallest roots left in the soil develop into full-grown plants if permitted to do so.—Farmers' Review.

CONVENIENT BAG HOLDER.
Empty Flour Barrel Is Prosaic Article Out of Which Device May Be Constructed.

A convenient bag holder can easily be made of an empty flour barrel, says the Farm and Home. Drive a nail through the hoops into each stave and clinch. Then saw out a door, as shown. Drive several 6d wire nails near the top of the barrel, sloping upward, on which to hang the bag. By having the door hinged the bag can be put in and taken out without lifting over the top.

THE CARE OF LIVE STOCK.

It is easy to make a horse's shoulders sore in a very short time if he is compelled to wear a poorly-fitting collar. The experiment of feeding molasses to horses has been found to be economical and very effective in many cases.

A ranch in the Ponca reservation, Lawton, Okla., has purchased from a half-breed Indian at Missoula, Mont., a herd of 20 fullblood buffaloes and will maintain them for breeding purposes. It is not a bad thing for a man to know something about shooting horses, even if he does not expect to shoot horses himself. It will pay the farm boy in the agricultural college to take a part of the course in blacksmithing.

Home of the Future.
Here is a prophecy by a Canadian newspaper: "The city home of the future will contain no stores. Cooking will be done by power, the building will be heated from a central plant, elevators will run from cellar to garret, and breakfast, lunch and dinner will be supplied from a cooperative center. Not only will the house of the future be cleaned by power, but the dust will be removed by a pneumatic exhaust system."

Curfew Bells Silent.
The historic bells of Chertsey parish (England) church which inspired Rosa Thorpe's famous verses, "Curfew Must Not Ring To-night," have lately stopped ringing because the frame of the church belfry has been pronounced unsafe and must be rebuilt. There are eight of these bells, of which two are 600 years old, and one, called the Abbey bell, sounded the curfew in the old days.

Royal Mausoleum.
The empress dowager of China is feeling the weight of her years and is anxious to have her last resting place made ready before she is "invited to become a guest of heaven." A correspondent says that something like $5,000,000 has already been spent on the proposed mausoleum west of Peking designated "the happy land of a myriad years."

When the War Is Over.
An expert on eastern affairs says that when the war is over China will flood Manchuria with a horde of colonists and so make a barrier that Russia will forever be unable to surmount. The writer goes on to say that if this had been done several years ago Russia would have never been able to push her forces southward.

Want German Professors.
The Russian government is looking for German professors to fill chairs at Russian universities. Twenty years ago Alexander III. drove all Germans away from places of trust and now the German professors are unwilling to serve in Russia, conditions seem so uncertain in that country.

The Vegetarische Wirt, a vegetarian journal published at Hamburg, appeals to its readers not to attend Wagner's performances or play any of the master's music. It describes Wagner as "a gross flesh-feeder" and a man who openly ridicules vegetarian principles.

MADE NEW STRENGTH

QUICKER THAN DOCTOR'S TONICS, SAYS TYPHOID PATIENT.

Young Lady Left by Fever in Very Weak State Took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with Gratifying Results.

After a fever, such as typhoid or scarlet, has run its full course there remains the recovery of strength. The tonic that will most rapidly increase the red corpuscles in the blood is the one that will most quickly restore color to the pale cheeks, strength to the weak muscles, and elasticity to the sluggish nerves. So far nothing has ever been produced superior to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this purpose.

Miss Midendorf had been ill with typhoid fever for fourteen weeks. She had a good physician who carried her safely through the critical stages. When he left, nothing remained to be done except to build up her strength, which was very feeble, and he gave her some prescriptions for that purpose. Here, however, she met with disappointment.

"I took the doctor's tonic," she says, "for two months after I had recovered from the fever, but they did not do me the good I looked for. My strength came back so slowly that I scarcely seemed to be making any progress at all. Just then I read in a book thrown in our yard some striking testimonials showing that wonderful blood-builders and strength-givers Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are. I got a box of them soon after this and after I had taken only about half of them I could see a very great improvement in my condition. When I had used up two boxes, I felt that I did not need any more medicine. I have remained strong ever since."

Miss E. B. Midendorf lives at No. 1501 Park street, Quincy, Ill. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best remedy to use in all cases of weakness, from whatever cause the system may be run down. In cases of debility due to overwork they minister fresh strength and overcome nervous symptoms. They are a specific for anemia or bloodlessness. They are particularly helpful to girls on the verge of womanhood. They meet all the requirements of the period known as the change of life. They correct spring languor. They strengthen weak digestion and rouse up sluggish organs. No other tonic combines so many virtues. All druggists sell them.

WOMAN'S PRIVILEGES.

She can wear her hat on one ear without being suspected of a convivial disposition.

She can be as inconsistent as an April sky, and her instability will be thought charming.

She can wheedle a man into almost anything by artful methods, and never lose her reputation for artless sincerity.

She can shed tears on the slightest provocation, which will merely prove to people that she is tender-hearted and sympathetic.

She can look openly into every mirror she passes without being accused of more than a natural feminine interest in her appearance.

She can spend a good deal of time considering her clothes and primping up her person, and who shall say that it is not a proper attribute of her sex to be beautiful?

Whereas if a man did any of these things he would be spelled in capital letters as frivolous, unstable, weak, vain, untruthful, foppish, hypocritical, flirtatious, mean, fake and silly.

She can succumb to all little weaknesses of womankind, such as coquetry, jealousy, vanity, trickery, inconsistency and infidelity, and all these things will be smiled at and condoned as enhancing her femininity.

Where? "Do you think women are lazier than men?" he asked.

"No," replied the old bachelor. "Where is there a man who would work half as hard at anything as the average woman does to fool people who hate her?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

SWORN OFF ON PEANUTS.

The Henpecked Man Arouses the Suspicion of His Better-Half by Eating Them.

"I am very fond of peanuts," said the henpecked man, according to the Philadelphia Record, "but I've had to give them up. No, not on account of my health. You see, my wife acted so foolish about it that I cut out the peanut habit simply to keep peace in the family. I frequently used to buy a bag to take home in the evening, and generally ate a few on the way. Well, the other evening my wife, who has a most suspicious nature, sneered at me when I reached home. 'Been eating peanuts again, have you?' she remarked. 'Why, yes, my dear,' I said, pulling the bag from my pocket. 'Fine thing to savor up on, eh?' she continued. I gazed at her in blank amazement. 'Oh, you needn't play innocent,' she went on. 'I know all about it. How many drinks have you had today?' 'My dear,' I expostulated, 'I don't know what you mean. I have had nothing to drink.' 'Don't tell me,' she exclaimed. 'I've found you out at last.' And with that she flashed on me some foolish newspaper clipping to the effect that after imbibing too freely a few peanuts have a wonderful effect in sobering a person up. Of course, all argument and denial would be futile; rather than that I have given up peanuts."

JAMMED HIS CRAZY BONE.
And the Graceful Manner in Which He Passed It Over Was Inspiring.

The good-natured man was busily working in the office of the oil company with a tall, slender Venus standing beside him drinking in his glowing words of wisdom, relates the Worcester Post. At his extreme left was a set of shallow drawers. The office boy inadvertently left one of them open, and the big man jammed his crazy bone on the knee, called scientifically the patella, I believe, and the conversation in which he was engaged sounded about as follows: "You will observe, please, Miss Smith, in making a record of this transaction that—blankety blank—Who the—left that drawer open?"

Miss Smith, in the anguish of sympathy, said: "Why, Mr. Brown, you aren't hurt, are you?" The innocent inquiry evoked the profoundest irony from the other, whose knee still felt the jar of the contact with the drawer.

"O, no! I wasn't hurt. To smash one's knee against a hard substance is merely a pleasure, and I often take a hammer and pound the kneecap for the delicious sensation that it excites." The girl burst into tears and had to take an afternoon off to recover from the effect of the sarcasm of her friend.
